CME PROGRAMME

Technology is one of the most powerful learning accelerators. Digitalization provides a means to improve education by enabling rapid dissemination and essentially cost free sharing at a global scale. Teaching learning methods used for under graduate students is continually being redefined based on the needs. As opposed to superficial learning where facts are memorized & regulated to pass the test, digital learning supports deeper learning. In order to meet the expectations of the present generation students, we must shift in the nature of teaching and learning by incorporating new technology along with traditional methods.

The objective of the CME programme is to update the learners and educators on digital learning tools.
